Hi Conor,

I work for a New York Times team tracking the administration of vaccines across the country. I tuned into Governor Polis' press conference earlier and heard him say that a few thousand Coloradans have begun receiving their second dose. Does your office have a precise number of how many Coloradans have been fully vaccinated (both doses) at this point?

Thanks,
Alex

Actually, when you say doses--that refers to individuals who've received their second dose correct? We've encountered this problem with testing and just want to be sure the numbers we're presenting represent 2190 Coloradans who have been fully vaccinated rather than 2190 doses administered.

fyi to consider tomorrow. I may not have needed clarification since I was asking about second doses specifically so any dose refers to an individual who got the full vaccine.

Thanks, Alex! Jordan, can you check to make sure we've got the right numbers in our vaccine database?
